From the Earth to the Heavens:

The Divinity of Northern Landscape

A lecture by

Professor Robert Rosenblum
of New York University

VA-114 Auditorium,
1395 Dorchester Blvd. W.
8:00 p.m. Saturday, March 24, 1984

One of North America's most distinguished historians of art, Dr. Rosenblum is presently Professor of Fine Arts at New York University. He has also taught at Princeton, Yale, Columbia and the University of Michigan. He is the author of Cubism and Twentieth Century Art; Transformation in Late Eighteenth Century Art; Jean-Auguste-Dominique Ingres; Frank Stella; Modern Painting and the Northern Romantic Tradition: Friedrich to Rothko. In 1972 Professor Rosenblum was Slade Professor of Fine Art at Oxford University.

Dr. Rosenblum's insights into the differences between the Northern European approach to landscape and the Mediterranean tradition are of particular relevance to Canadian landscape painting of the last hundred years.
